Market Gap

Increasing Crime in South Africa

In the current economic climate of South Africa, many South Africans are jobless and need to provide for themselves and their families. This factor has resulted in an increasing crime rate in South Africa. A lack of education has contributed to the increasing crime in south Africa.

Public Preference

According to the 'Victims of Crime' survey the public's faith in the Police's ability to solve crimes has steadily fallen. In 2011, 64% of people had confidence in the police; this figure dropped to 58.8% in 2015/16.

The general public in South Africa are losing faith in the South African Police Services. However, with the increasing crime in South Africa the public still requires protection and turns to Private Security Companies to protect their homes, assists, vehicles and lives.

Unreliable Security Service Provider

Private security companies and security guards can be unreliable and poor. This creates an opportunity for an ethical service provider in the Security Industry to fill this gap.

Agility Security is an ethical, honest and quality security service provider. The gap will be targeted through ethical, honest and a quality service delivery to the client.

Market Trends

Consumer Preferences:
